1995 is a time to remember: a time to reminisce on the sacrifices and accomplishments of the past; a time to gain perspective about where we have come from; to better understand our professional roots.

As we better understand our heritage, the people, places, and events that have made this profession great, our present and future come into sharper focus. We will make better decisions based on our greater breadth of understanding; we will have the insight to know who we really are.
