LCCW TO RECEIVE HIGH-TECH LEARNING SYSTEM

Editorial Staff

San Francisco attorney Arnold Laub, who specializes in chiropractic and personal injury law, has pledged $10,000 towards the purchase of a high-tech learning and review system for Life Chiropractic College West (LCCW). This state-of-the-art computer system, to be located in LCCW's library, combines the qualities of computers and high-resolution visual images of videodiscs. Mr. Laub presented his initial check to LCCW President Dr. Gerard Clum on June 5th.

Life West's first acquisition of software and images for the system will be the updated medical interactive radiology and teaching file. This program includes 40,000 x-rays and images from other sources such as computed tomography (CT), and magnetic resource imaging (MRI). Other software programs available in interactive videodisc format include neuroanatomy, microbiology, clinical pathology, and many other subjects.

LCCW Faculty Members and Alumni Involved in National Boards Publication

Four faculty and alumni from LCCW are among the contributors to the two recently published volumes of Appleton & Lange's Review for the Chiropractic National Boards. Contributing to the publication were LCCW alumna Pam Shanks, D.C. (class of '90); Basic Science Faculty member Doug Thorp, M.S.; Associate Academic Dean Dorothy Voight, M.S., and Sciences faculty member Dr. Lawrence Nordhoff (class of '84).

Gonstead Club Donates Cervical Adjusting Chairs

Student members of the Gonstead Club at LCCW, a club comprised of students who are specializing in the chiropractic techniques developed by the late Dr. Clarence Gonstead, recently donated 10 cervical adjusting chairs to the college's technique department. The club members raised funds through donations and contributed lecture fees from supportive field chiropractors.

DCs who made donations included: Drs. Darald Bolin, Jason Araghi, Jeanne Taylor, Roger Kasperbauer, John Whitney, Rod Campbell, Randy Yano, and Joe Martin.

LCCW Graduates 70 DCs

Life West conferred D.C. degrees on 70 graduates during the June 14th spring commencement ceremonies. The commencement speaker was Dr. James M. Sigafosse, an internationally renowned lecturer on chiropractic and 16-year member of the LCCW board. For the winter quarter the valedictorian was Pamela J. Adams and the salutatorian was Tina Marie McGinnis. Spring quarter honorees were valedictorian Mark David Campbell, and salutatorian Karen A. O'Brien.

Students Elect 1992-93 Officers

The LCCW student body has elected officers for its student council. The new president is junior David Heffer, from Webster, New York; Sean B. White, a junior from Canyon, California was elected vice president; the new secretary is Susan H.C. Mosley, a freshman from Newport Beach, California; and treasurer is sophomore Ronald G. Crawford from Concord, California.
