Three Colleges Announce New NYCC Pre-chiropractic Program

Passaic County Community College in Paterson, New Jersey; Neumann College in Aston, Pennsylvania; and Park College in Parkville, Michigan will all offer pre-chiropractic programs for students hoping to fulfill science pre-requisites for admission to the New York Chiropractic College (NYCC).

Students from these colleges who intend to matriculate at NYCC will receive priority consideration in the admission process if they have achieved an associate of science degree in this pre-chiropractic program. The pre-chiropractic program is designed to facilitate the transition of transfer students, provide advisement for students considering chiropractic careers and provide for interaction between the institutions.

Passaic County Community College is a two-year institution granting an associates degree in liberal art and science; both Neumann College and Park College grant four-year baccalaureate and master's degrees.
