

Life College and University of Mexico City Forge Exchange Program

Dynamic Chiropractic Staff

Life College and the University of Mexico City recently announced the formation of a new academic and athletic exchange program. The program includes a permanent educational exchange where graduate students from the University of Mexico City will study in Life's Sports Health master's degree program. In turn, DCs and students from Life will set up a chiropractic sports clinic in Mexico.

Life has already begun the athletic exchange with Mexico. Last year Life signed an accord with Mexico's National Commission of Sports, and hosted the first exchange of 20 track and field Olympic hopefuls from Mexico. The next visit was from the Mexico City soccer champions and for two consecutive years Mexican runners have participated in the Run for Life's International Challenge Cup. Said the Mexican Consul in Atlanta Theodore Maus, "Through the universities, we can complement each community."

SCCA Donates Chiropractic Books to College Libraries

The South Carolina Chiropractic Association (SCCA) has donated a three volume set of chiropractic books to the 23 colleges and universities in the state of South Carolina. Organizing the efforts were Dr. Robert L. Stubblefield, SCCA public relations chairman, and Dr. Michael Kale, SCCA member and president of the Kale Foundation. Said Dr. Stubblefield, "I was amazed at how anxious these folks were for chiropractic information. Most of the colleges had little to no information on chiropractic." The SCCA is currently developing a list of chiropractic reading materials, and will ask DCs to donate these books.

Chiropractors Sponsor "Red Ribbon Run"

The Mid-Peninsula Doctors of Chiropractic, a California association, sponsored the "Red Ribbon Run" in Menlo Park October 18th as part of Red Ribbon Week, a national drug awareness program. The program covers all drugs, not only the illegal substances. The Mid-Peninsula Doctors of Chiropractic provide as much information as possible on both the illegal and pharmaceutical drugs.

Proceeds from the race went to a group called "Youth and Family Assistance," devoted to helping children involved in drug abuse. Red Ribbon Week founder, Chris Bambus, D.C., who has received commendations from President Bush and former First Lady Nancy Reagan for his work fighting drug abuse, said: "As a chiropractor, I am proud to be a part of this week of National Drug Awareness and would like to see every chiropractor getting involved with their community and starting a run or similar program which gives us a platform to stand up against drugs and for health on a national level."
