

Show Policy-Makers Chiropractic Counts

Editorial Staff

With health care reform looming, what better time to contact legislators and policy-makers and share the rationale for giving more patients more access to the services you provide. To that end, the Government Relations Working Group of the Chiropractic Summit has created a 28-page policy document that outlines how chiropractic can best be utilized in a reformed health care system and documents how chiropractic's clinical and cost-effectiveness can relieve pressure on the "current failing system." Available online from state and national chiropractic organizations, the paper can be printed and downloaded for lobbying purposes at no charge.
